Introduction to ED

These classes introduce a value-driven approach to the Explore and Synthesis phases of your design process. The aim is to help you recognize values in design, understand what matters to stakeholders, and use these insights to shape a responsible design direction for your individual client project.

The sequence follows the following set-up:

1. understand values → 2. understand stakeholders → 3. map relationships → 4. revise the brief → 5. identify tensions → 6. define requirements → 7. refine work

By Week 9, you will have completed the first six stages for your individual client project. In class of week 9, you will take part in a structured peer review to learn from others' approaches, check whether your own process is coherent, and refine your work before assessment.
